

COLLEGE REPORT

By ROBERT M. BERSI
Assistant to the President
California State College, Dominguez Hills

During the week following had been most and least successful. The evaluation form was mailed to 200 registrants who had signed address cards at the college's registration desk. (An estimated 50 additional attendees visited only one working session or the final banquet and did not formally register, or attended as part of a bloc.) Of the 200 forms mailed out, 112 were returned (a 56 per cent response).

RESPONDENTS were asked to rate the conference and its various aspects on a scale ranging from superior to inadequate. The evaluation form responses indicate that the majority of conference participants believes Dominguez Hills did a good-to-excellent job in most aspects of hosting the conference.

Highest rated were the noon visual presentations and the major panel speakers, both of which were given chiefly "superior" and "excellent" rankings. Respondents agreed that the conference fulfilled its stated purposes, and that it compared well with other conferences of a similar nature they had attended.

The lowest rating—approximately "good-plus"—was given the physical arrangements and the effectiveness of the discussion groups. But no service or activity received a mean evaluation of less than "good."

MORE THAN 90 per cent of respondents agreed that they believe the college should stimulate community discussion, that it should sponsor a followup conference, that such a conference should be concerned with topics other than beautification and that speakers from outside the area should be invited to attend. Preferred speakers would seem to be community planners and political leaders.

About 85 per cent indicated that they learned more about the purposes and goals of the college as an adjunct to the conference. Because one of the purposes of hosting these sessions was to make the institution better-known to the community and more actively involved in its affairs, this evaluation proved highly satisfying. (Increased requests for information about the academic program during and immediately after the conference would seem to bear out this judgement.)

Respondents almost unanimously requested copies of the proceedings, indicating that their interest in these matters is neither superficial nor fleeting.

Runaway Returned To Home

A North High student who ran away from home last week with his 15-year-old girlfriend has been returned to Torrance.

The youth, who fled when he learned that his dad is not his natural father, was taken into custody in Jewelsburg, Colo.

The boy's mother remarried 14 years ago and the 16-year-old youth became upset when he learned of it.

His adopted father traveled to Colorado to return the boy and his girlfriend.

Hearing Slated on County Wrecking Yard Ordinance

Supervisor Kenneth Hahn said today he is hopeful new regulations requiring the beautification of auto-wrecking and junk yards will be in effect soon within Los Angeles County.

Hahn, who initiated studies in cooperation with the automobile wrecking industry, said the requirements would provide more attractive communities.

A public hearing on a proposed ordinance amendment is scheduled Feb. 13 before the Regional Planning Commission.

Original reports from the commission to the Board of Supervisors recommended that wrecking yards, junk yards, and salvage operations be given three years to comply.

At Hahn's suggestion, a one-year limitation will be imposed.

The Supervisor outlined the regulations as follows:

- Premises should be paved to prevent dust and dirt.
- Adequate parking spaces, depending on the size of the operation, should be provided on the premises to accommodate persons bringing wrecked cars or refuse to the site.
- Storage and dismantling operations should be conducted in an enclosed building or behind a neat, clean, wall or fence at least eight feet high.
- The stacking of automobiles, junk, salvage, and trasher should not occur above the fence height.

Hahn said operators of such establishments will also be encouraged to landscape their property and to plant shrubbery to make a more attractive setting and enhance the appearance of the community.

Homes Approved

A tentative subdivision map which called for construction of three homes on a half-acre parcel south of Dominguez Street and west of Bolsa Street in the Carson area was approved by the County Regional Planning Commission on the petition of Amelia Yunquez, 2114 1/2 Bolsa, owner and subdivider.
